The Urge To Purge...

When an organization relocates, it is a perfect time to perform a number of "housekeeping chores". Foremost on this list is having a structured and aggressive plan to have employees discard or shred unneeded paper. If every employee were to purge 10% of their contents an organization could reap substantial cost savings on their relocation. A simple motto to follow would be "When in doubt, toss it out!".

Anatomy of the Eagle

Eagle Transfer, located at the former Bloomingdale's warehouse at 23-02 49th Avenue in Long Island City is the only major New York City mover to be self contained in one location. Our quarter of a million square feet of storage space, all our vehicles and equipment, and our corporate offices are all housed together. The synergies, work efficiencies, and cost savings that this configuration provides are all major contributors to Eagle Transfer's three plus decades of success.

Crates US. Boxes

Eagle Transfer offers its clients the option of performing relocations with traditional cardboard boxes or plastic crates. Crates can often times provide numerous cost efficiencies to a relocation budget.
